St Thomas Aquinas 	God is the First Cause of the Universe. God must exist because something without a cause must have started the universe off.	God does not exist. There was no first cause. Instead there is an endless chain of causes stretching back into infinity
Ludwig Feuerbach 	God does not exist In order to be happy, humans need there to be a God, so we invent one. We imagine God as the perfect person. God is an idea in the mind of man	Just because we imagine something, does not mean it is not real. There are plenty of things for which we have a mental picture but that does not mean they can not exist. Therefore this is not enough to say that God does not exist
William Paley 	There must be a maker of the universe, God because of its design and purpose. Can you ever imagine a watch coming into existence by chance? The world is more complex than a watch	The design just happened by chance over a very long time. The theory of evolution says this
Blaise Pascal 	You can not prove God exists, but everyone must make their choice. It is a gamble, and the only way to win is to live as if God exists.	You need more than a gamble to establish whether God exists or not. You need reasoned trust.
